Gay and Barry Curtiss-Lusher
Kathy Martin (raised Catholic) and Rob Klugman (raised Jewish) met in Chicago in 1978. They married and moved to Denver the following year. Kathy found it easy to find a Chicago priest who would participate in the wedding service. Rob had a much more difficult time finding a rabbi who would officiate. He discovered there were only two rabbis in the Chicago area who would do such a thing.

Kathy and Rob's children, Maura and Terry, were born in 1983 and 1985, and eventually enrolled in the Denver Jewish Community Center (JCC) Preschool. The JCC introduced their family to their first Jewish experiences: holidays, traditions, and, most importantly, Jewish values, which Kathy realized were very much her values as well.

At age seven, Terry decided, while preparing for his Catholic First Communion, that he wanted to learn more about Judaism. Terry studied with Stepping Stones at Temple Emanuel. After one year in the program, he decided that he wanted to be Jewish and prepare for his Bar Mitzvah, which took place six years later at Temple Emanuel.

Rob learned about Judaism Your Way shortly after it was founded in 2005. He and Kathy felt it was the perfect fit for their interfaith family. Rob was so committed to the work of Judaism Your Way that he joined the Board, eventually serving as president.

"When we see the number of people who come to the Botanic Gardens for High Holy Day services -- people who otherwise might not be coming to services at all -- it reinforces our conviction that Judaism Your Way is supplying a very important option for our community."

Kathy serves on the board of directors for Volunteers of America and has for over 30 years. Kathy has served as president of the Volunteers of America Guild and the Alzheimer’s Association AWARE Research Guild. She was a board member of the Denver Health Foundation, Staenberg Loup Jewish Community Center, and Young American's Bank. Rob serves on the board of Judaism Your Way and Anti-Defamation League. Rob is a former member of the Board for Rose Community Foundation, Denver Botanic Gardens, and the YMCA of Metro Denver.

We are thrilled to honor the Klugmans at The Open Tent Gala! Let’s raise our glasses in their honor!
